On weeknights, most restaurants close between 11 p.m. and 3 a.m., with Fridays and Saturdays often closing at midnight. However, suburb locations may remain open later due to demand. Most city locations tend to have better opening hours than suburbs. You can usually find them open from 10 a.m. onwards, which is suitable for early lunch or late breakfast. Office workers often visit these outlets around noon. In some areas, Pizza Hut opens as early as 8 a.m. and 9 a.m., especially during peak demand periods. The opening hours typically vary by no more than 30 minutes from the average of 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. A large Pizza Hut pizza has ten slices and measures approximately 14 inches in diameter, which can fit into a standard box. For parties, it's recommended to order a large size. Pizza Hut delivers pizzas within thirty to forty minutes after ordering. The delivery hours vary by location but typically end at 11 p.m. on weekday nights. City outlets may deliver later, up to 2 a.m., on weekends. Delivery prices range from $4 to $10, depending on the restaurant's location. A delivery charge will be added to your bill, covering the cost of the driver's tip. The cost of having Pizza Hut bring your meal right to your doorstep is a consideration. While not mandatory, it's customary to show appreciation for the delivery person with a tip of 15% to 20%. As for how far they'll go to get your pizza to you, their maximum delivery distance is around ten miles, though some locations can stretch up to fifteen miles. But, in a remarkable feat, Pizza Hut set a record by delivering pizzas into outer space - a stunt that proved their ability to bring your favorite pie to anywhere on the planet!
